

EDITORIAL

Multiple Sclerosis

Fritz Lampert, MD, Munich, Germany, Peter Lampert, MD, La Jolla, Calif425

ORIGINAL CONTRIBUTIONS

Nonviral Intranuclear Filamentous Inclusions

Cheng-Mei Shaw, MD, S. Mark Sumi, MD, Seattle428

Cerebral Vasospasm and Ruptured Intracranial Aneurysm

Clark H. Millikan, MD, Rochester, Minn433

Brief Hypoxia-Ischemia Initially Damages Cerebral Neurons

*David E. Levy, MD, New York; James B. Brierley, MD, Carshalton, Surrey, England;
David G. Silverman; Fred Plum, MD, New York*450

Cerebral Blood Flow

Robert C. Osburne, MD, James H. Halsey, Jr., MD, Birmingham, Ala457

Water in Brain Edema

K. Gwan Go, MD, Hommo T. Edzes, MSc, Groningen, Netherlands462

Failure to Confirm a Vascular Cause of Muscular Dystrophy

*Walter G. Bradley, DM; Michael D. O'Brien, MD; Dennis N. Walder, MD; Dorothy Murchison, BSc;
Margaret Johnson, PhD; David J. Newell, PhD, Newcastle upon Tyne, England*466

Chronic Cerebellar Stimulation in the Monkey

*Sid Gilman, MD; George W. Dauth, PhD; Virginia M. Tennyson, PhD;
Leon T. Kremzner, PhD, New York*474

BRIEF COMMUNICATIONS

Lid-Lag in the Guillain-Barré Syndrome

James R. Keane, MD, Los Angeles478

Moebius Syndrome in Association With Peripheral Neuropathy and Kallmann Syndrome

*Allen E. Rubinstein, MD; Robert E. Lovelace, MD; Miles M. Behrens, MD;
Leon A. Weisberg, MD, New York*480

Asymptomatic Enlargement of the Sella Turcica

Leon A. Weisberg, MD, New Orleans483

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS

News and Comment486

Letter to the Editor487

Cellular Immunity and SSPE: Program and Abstracts488